Premier Screening: Restraints and Seclusion : Hear Our Stories.

Dan Habib, filmmaker in residence at the UNH Institute on Disability, documents the school experiences of five students from across the country who have physical or mental disabilities. Their stories, told by themselves or their parents, describe the trauma they suffered when they were placed in segregated classrooms and subjected to physical restraints or isolated seclusion. This 27-minute documentary features the firsthand accounts of students and families, who describe the devastating physical and emotional injuries they suffered because of being restrained and secluded in public schools.
